South Richmond Views.

South Richmond Views.

Mr. Patram ably stated the position of a certain portion of the Washington Ward population. His people, he said, believed it to be an attempt to freeze them out; that they considered it violation of campaign promises made during the annexation contest, and that South Richmond would not have proper representation under this four-ward plan.

"We gave you our city to help you build our city," he said. "If you adopt this I will have to go back to my people and tell them you didn't keep your promise."

ple and tell them you didn't keep pour promise."

His colleagues Alderman John Moore, took a different view. He explained that at a meeting of the Washington Ward Democratic Club several weeks ago, he had asked for an expression of opinion, and it had been determined to leave the representatives in the Council to use their best judgment. "I thought the matter out," continued Mr. Moore, "and I voted in the ordinance committee for the plan. I think it is a good thing for Richmond and consequently it must be a good thing for Richmond, and therefore I will vote for it here tonight. It seems strange to me to read in the newspapers of to-day that the same Democratic (lub held a meeting last night, and instructed the delegation to oppose the ordinance. I have received no notice of any such meeting, and I know of no reason why the club should take such action this late in the fight, when it refused to do so pefore. I believe this new plan of government the best thing that has ever happened for the good of Richmond, and I am for it."

How the Vote Stood.

With the applause which followed this speech still ringing through the building, the roll was called on the ordinance as it came from the Council, and it was concurred in by the following vote:

Ayes—Messrs. Adams, Bennett, But-er. Cowardin, Don Leavy, Gilman grundy, Gunst, Hobson, Kain, Mitchell Ionaure, Moore, Rennoids, Whittet—

The Administrative Board.

The main question of the night then came up, the joint resolution instructing the City Attorney to secure from the next General Assembly such changes in the charter of the city as will provide for an administrative board. The Hirschberg substitute ordinance as adopted by the Common Council was read by title, detailed reading being dispensed with, every member being familiar with the plan by this time. Mr. Don Leavy opened the debate, stating that as a member of the special committee which drew the report, every one know his attitude, and he explained that while favoring the committees plan, he wanted to see an administrative board created—be the plan amended or unamended. But to test the issue, he moved to strike out all of the sections altered by the Hirschberg substitute, relating to the Fire, Police and Health Departments, and insert clauses which would restore the ordinance to the exact form in which it came from the special committee, and in which it was recommended by the Committee on Ordinance, Charter and Reform, and had received the support of every com-Ordinance, Charter and Reform, and had received the support of every com-mercial organization and newspaper

Mr. Nelsen then offered an amendment providing that the proposed sections of the charter shall not take effect until ratified by a vote of the neople at a special election. Powers Against Board.

Mr. Powers spoke at some length against the creation of an administrative board, being the only member to speak against the general proposition. He thought it dangerous and unsafe to place the government in the hands of so few men; that they could under it build up a most gigantic political organization through patronage and contracts, asserting that he did not wish to see the gates opened in Richmond for political conditions such as are said to exist in Norfolk. An election would merely select the five most popular men in the city, regardless of their fitness or business ability, whether competent or incompetent, and the whole movement for a doubtful experiment would place on the tax-payers a burden of from $50,000 to $100,000 annual expenditure. He thought it absurd to pay men only $4,000 to have the entire expenditure and supervision of an annual outlay of $3,000,000, and suggested as a possible weakness that while these commissioners could not sell the Gas Works, they might lease it to some persons who would make enormous profits out of what should be a public enterprise.

The Final Vote.

Mr. Don Leavy answered his argument point by point, after which the roll was called and the resolution adopted as amended, the Board of Aldermen going on record as favoring an administrative board just as proposed by the special committee by a
